Best Times to Visit During Orlando's Summer Season

Summer in Orlando is popular, warm, and often busy. If your schedule is flexible, consider planning your visit around the parts of the day that work best for your group.

Earlier in the Day

A morning or early-day visit can be a good fit for families who want to enjoy an activity before the hottest part of the afternoon. It can also help you leave room for lunch, shopping, or other Orlando plans later in the day.

Later in the Day

An evening mini golf outing can be a fun way to wind down after a busy day in Orlando. If you plan to visit later, check closing times in advance so your group has enough time to play comfortably.

Around Summer Weather

Afternoon rain and storms are common in Central Florida during the summer. Checking the latest conditions before you leave can help you decide whether to head over now or adjust your plans.
